about musicalchairs

musicalchairs was founded in 2000 by John and Clare Bradbury. John is a leading British Clarinettist and Clare, a primary school teacher.

musicalchairs has proved to be a superb educational tool for people working in every area of classical music; from young musicians planning their studies and careers, to professional players and teachers looking for suitable employment.

More than 400 orchestras, conservatoires and universities use the site to advertise positions for orchestral players, chorus members, arts administrators and teachers. The site also offers information on the latest masterclasses and competitions for young musicians.

Advertisers tell us that we reach the best applicants for a fraction of the cost of print advertising, saving clients money and raising standards of auditions and interviews.

We are communicating daily with the workforce you require and we are undoubtedly the No.1 site for classical music jobs.
